Communicating safety

Organised by the Public Services Group and supported by Zurich Municipal, the acclaimed National Safety Symposium is now in its 31st year. While the two-day residential symposium is traditionally associated with local authorities and public service bodies, it is aimed at anyone who has responsibility for managing or organising health and safety in the workplace.

This year's event will focus on conveying the health and safety message effectively by recognising potential communication barriers. It will look at skills and techniques that can be used by the safety practitioner to promote and encourage good health and safety performance and standards.

Why attend?

Through a series of keynote presentations and parallel sessions, this year's symposium will explore many hot topics, including effective communication, the power of negotiation, building a quality business case, procurement, migrant workers, sickness absence, upskilling the workforce and legal updates.

The symposium is more than just a learning forum – it's a platform to debate everyday issues facing the safety professional and an opportunity to share ideas and make new contacts.

The 2006 symposium is a key event in the OSH calendar for:

- health and safety practitioners
- occupational health and welfare professionals
- employees with health and safety responsibilities
- senior managers
- risk managers

Public Services Annual Dinner and Zurich Municipal Safety Awards Monday 04 September

All residential delegates are invited to attend the Zurich Municipal Safety Awards, presented in recognition of outstanding contributions to public sector health and safety. The awards will be held in the Leicestershire Suite of the four-star Holiday Inn Hotel, and will include a welcome by IOSH's incoming president, a drinks reception, three-course dinner, networking opportunities and entertainment.

The location

For the first time, the symposium is being held in a four-star hotel in a vibrant city-centre location. Leicester has a population of around 280,000 and is the largest city in the East Midlands. Rich in history and diverse ethnicity, Leicester has developed into a major commercial and manufacturing centre. Home to Walkers Crisps, Everards Brewery and Thomas Cook, Leicester has many attractions including the National Space Centre, River Soar, Castle Gardens, 13th-century Guildhall, Jewry Wall Museum and Leicester Cathedral.
